Children's Health Fair Oct 12

Puppets, clowns, balloons and finger-painting will be part of the fun at the UCSF Children's Health Fair on Saturday, October 12, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Millberry Union, 500 Parnassus Avenue.

Children of all ages and their families are invited to attend this special, free event, which will focus on the theme of health education, disease prevention and safety for young people.

Sponsored by the UCSF Children's Medical Center and Hospitals and Clinics, the fair will feature more than 50 booths and exhibits designed to help children learn about the many aspects of health care through "hands-on" experiences. Some of the activities will include hospital play with puppets, health screening, computer read-outs of personal health information, art projects using hospital supplies and the chance to explore the inside of an ambulance.

The 1985 reunion for children who were patients in the Intensive Care Nursery or mothers who participated in the Pre-term Labor Program will be held in conjunction with the health fair. Sponsored by the UCSF Parent Support Group, the annual reunion provides a chance for Support Group members to renew friendships and for medical and nursing staff to be reacquainted with patients they had cared for.

Beckman Vision Center Groundbreaking Oct 28

A groundbreaking ceremony for the new Beckman Vision Center will be held on Monday, October 28, at 11:30 a.m. on the west side of the campus, near the upper parking lot behind the UC Hospital Building.

The Center is made possible by some $14 million in private gifts raised in a campaign directed by That Man May See, including a $3.5 million grant from the Arnold and Mabel Beckman Foundation, for whom the Center is named, and a $2.4 million challenge grant from the Koret Foundation.

When completed, the new Center will house one of the country's outstanding programs for sustained basic and clinical research in eye disease, which can lead to better prevention, diagnosis and treatment of eye problems and the prevention of blindness.

The Center will comprise the Koret Vision Research Laboratory, new ambulatory eye care facilities and a clinical eye research unit, allowing UCSF researchers to continue their work in a large, consolidated facility.

Center for Excellence in Neuroscience

The National Institutes of Health has selected UCSF to share $15 million in funds specifically designated by Congress to establish four Senator Jacob Javits Centers for Excellence in Neuroscience.

The $4 million grant to UCSF will support study of slow infectious agents, or prions, which are known to cause several degenerative neurological diseases in humans and animals. The UCSF center, to be headed by neurologist Stanley B. Prusiner, MD, will continue studies which began 10 years ago to determine the structure of prions and how they cause disease.

Joining Prusiner in his study of prions are an international team of researchers at the California Institute of Technology, the Institute of Molecular Biology at the University of Zurich, the Naval Biosciences Laboratory at UC-Berkeley, the Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor Maine, and the University of Dusseldorf. Research will be conducted in existing laboratories at the various institutions.

The three other research centers are Rockefeller University in New York, Washington University in St. Louis and Yale University in New Haven, Connecticut.

These centers "shall be dedicated to finding the cause, prevention and cure for neurological diseases" through studies of the "fundamental biological issues of nervous system structure and function," according to the Senate directive.

New Telephone System

UCSF's entire phone system, including Hospitals and Clinics, will soon change from the telephone prefix 666 to 476.

Hospitals and Clinics' main telephone number will be 476-1000, separate from the main campus number of 476-9000. Watch for the exact day these new numbers go into effect.

Man With Transplanted Heart Gets a New Kidney

Louis Bonesio recently became the first person in the world with transplanted organs from two separate donors. Eleven years ago Louis Bonesio received a transplanted heart at Stanford University Medical Center, and on July 29, at the age of 51, he got a new kidney at UCSF. He also has two stainless steel hips.

Bonesio is a vivid example of the great need that exists for transplantable organs and tissues. There continue to be many more patients awaiting organ transplants than there are donors available.

At UCSF 517 patients are on the waiting list for kidney donations and 10,000 people nationwide are estimated to be in need of kidney transplants.

The donor of Bonesio's kidney also served as a combined heart-lung donor to a 32-year old man from Iowa at Stanford. His other kidney was transplanted at UCSF into Richard Quon, 56, of Castro Valley, and his corneas were transplanted at UCSF and the Veteran's Administration Medical Center.

UCSF-Laurel Heights Update

Some 100 residents attended a UCSF public meeting in August to find out the latest information on the new UCSF-Laurel Heights campus site.

Jere Goyan, dean of the School of Pharmacy, told the group about his school's academic and scientific programs slated to move to that site on a phased basis. The first to move in will be the offices of the dean and the school's computer graphics, magnetic resonance imaging and theoretical physical chemistry programs.

The Campus Labor Relations Department already has moved in, and two small specialized outpatient study programs, the Center on Deafness and the Psoriasis Day Care Center, will move by early next year. Caltrans now occupies one-half of the building on a 5- to 10-year lease.

When more of the UCSF activities have been relocated, a shuttle service will be initiated to help alleviate parking problems in the neighborhood. Campus security officers are now patrolling on foot, on duty 24 hours a day, seven days a week, according to Thomas Gwyn, assistant chancellor of public programs, and UCSF police in marked cars are making regular rounds.

The campus is now preparing a full Environmental Impact Report that will cover not only what the campus plans to do in these first phases, but also its long-range plans for the time when UCSF will occupy the entire building.

The next public meeting will be held Tuesday, November 12, at 7 p.m. in the auditorium at the UCSF-Laurel Heights site, 3333 California Street. A public hearing on the EIR will be scheduled next spring. For further information call 666-3206.

New Pediatric Quarters

The Pediatric Clinical Research Center moved into new, remodeled quarters on the sixth floor of Moffitt Hospital in July as part of the UCSF Children's Medical Center. The expanded PCRC has double the floor space including a formal outpatient area in addition to its inpatient unit.

Clinical work involves pediatric immunology, endocrinology and rheumatology specialists who have achieved important advances in understanding and treating pediatric AIDS, immune deficiency disorders, growth deficiency and nutritional absorption problems related to sickle cell anemia. Over the past year more than 500 patients have been treated in the center, which is under the direction of Diane Wara, MD, professor of pediatrics.

$4.7 Million to Study AIDS

UC researchers have been awarded almost $4.7 million in state funds to continue studying AIDS. UCSF led the other UC campuses with 25 proposals funded for $1,819,522. UCLA was second with $976,420 for 17 proposals.

Projects to be funded this year include clinical trials of new drugs used to treat various aspects of AIDS, said Merle A. Sande, MD, UCSF professor and vice chair of medicine, who is chair of the UC task force which allocates the AIDS state funds.

A portion of the money also will be used to continue research that deals specifically with the heterosexual spread of the disease, as well as what risks, if any, health care workers face in dealing with AIDS patients, he added.

TV Health Tips
